

Mrs. Wooley's Art Blizzard Bag Lesson #1

After you complete this lesson turn it into your homeroom teacher and she will give it to me.

Many artists created landscape designs by looking out their window. Today look out of your window and draw something that you see that is closest to you. This is called the foreground. Then draw something that is a little farther away. That is the middle ground. Finally, draw something very far away. That is called the background. If you have crayons, or anything to add color, go ahead and color your work.
